Purdue-UAB Botanicals Center Symposium Botanicals and Age-Related Diseases February 22-23, 2007

We cordially invite you and your colleagues to attend the Seventh Annual Symposium of the Purdue-UAB Botanicals Research Center for Age Related Diseases with an Emphasis on Polyphenols. The NIH-funded Center includes about 40 researchers, and has a goal of increasing the quality and quantity of research into understanding the biomedical actions of botanicals. The annual Symposium has been a major highlight of our Center and its ability to coalesce scientists for in depth consideration and research into the biological effects of botanicals, especially as they relate to the aging population. Our kick off event Thursday, February 22nd features a lecture with Colin Powell at 7:30 preceded by dinner at 5:30 in the John Purdue Room of Stone Hall. An alternative event for those who prefer music could be Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dream coat. This year's Symposium is on February 23rd from 8 to 4:30 at the Purdue University. (see attached program). The session includes a poster session featuring research from both the Botanicals Center and the Interdepartmental Nutrition Graduate Program, with monetary awards given to the student and postdoctoral fellow whose posters are deemed best in each category. A special lunch featuring chocolate will be provided-designed by Kim Galeaz, Galeaz Communications and sponsored by Delavau LLC. Deb Miller from The Hershey Company is our luncheon speaker.

We hope that your corporation/agency can have one or more representatives attend the Symposium and interact with our researchers. Corporate/University alliances have become a hallmark of modern research and product development. As noted on the registration form, the registration fee is $75. We have enclosed an agenda of the Symposium and a registration form. Please return the registration along with the check made out to Purdue Research Foundation with the memo line 2007 Botanicals Symposium. We look forward to your participation in this annual event.
