Join us during summer, 2014 for a stay in Rorges, Grand Roanne, in the heart of Burgundy, France. This one week program will give you the opportunity to earn 2 credits as you explore the rich culinary and cultural background of France. Rather than pursue a harried schedule of packing every morning and unpacking every night, you will enjoy the peaceful surroundings of a french villa (Villa Beaulieu) between daily excursions to local farmers’ markets, a vineyard, an oil press, and a chocolate maker.

Scientists have been baffled about the observation that the French eat delicious, rich food and yet their rates of heart disease are less than the rates of Americans. Your participation in a wine and cheese class and in cooking classes will aid your exploration of the phenomenon called the French paradox. The course will capitalize on the scientific and social issues surrounding this controversy while simultaneously being immersed in the culture of French food and eating patterns. Although the course is designed from the perspective of foods and nutrition, undergraduate students from all academic areas across the Purdue campus will benefit from the course (French majors are not eligible for this course as it will not meet the requirements for language immersion.) This is a Nutrition Science course. (On transcripts, the course will show up as NUTR 39800.) Student projects will explore one aspect of the paradox, e.g., polyphenols in wine and chocolate, eating patterns, profile of dietary fats.

The John and Emma Tse Fund for Global Scholars has been established to assist undergraduate students in the College of Health and Human Sciences with costs associated with study abroad. For more information, go to: http://www.purdue.edu/hhs/academic/study_abroad/index.html.

You may also want to contact the Financial Aid office for information (http://www.purdue.edu/dfa/).
If interested, you will need to apply for the French Culture, Food, and Health trip through the Study Abroad website:

Once enrolled, check your “My Study Abroad” page. It will contain links to three forms that you will need to complete:
   1. Medical Information Form
   2. Risk and Responsibility Form
   3. Information Release Form (complete online)

Please complete the forms and return the Medical Information Form and the Risk and Responsibility Form to Deb Pullen, Stone Hall, Room G-1.

You MUST provide Deb with a copy of your passport. (If you do not have a passport, GO TO THE POST OFFICE TO APPLY FOR A PASSPORT AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. Make a copy of the post office receipt and provide it to Deb as proof that you have applied for one. Please follow-up with a copy of your passport, once you receive it.)

A NON-REFUNDABLE DEPOSIT OF $500 IS REQUIRED.

In order to complete the application process, students must turn in the forms, copy of passport (or proof of application for passport), and the non-refundable deposit by January 31, 2014.

You will be notified of acceptance once the above steps have been completed. Don’t wait till the last minute!

Note: During registration for the Summer Semester, you must register for the course, SA 10202.
